A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 10,373 families in Senate District 1.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.
- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.
- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.
- A Missouri EITC would benefit 8,930 families in Senate District 2.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 14,982 families in Senate District 3.

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 15,270 families in Senate District 4.

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.
- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.
- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.
- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

A Missouri EITC would benefit 22,160 families in Senate District 5.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 13,770 families in Senate District 6.

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 13,074 families in Senate District 7.

---

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.
- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.
- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.
- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

---

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 9,785 families in Senate District 8.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 22,930 families in Senate District 9.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 14,050 families in Senate District 10.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 16,807 families in Senate District 11.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 11,797 families in Senate District 12.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.

WWWW.MOBUDGET.ORG @MISSOURIBUDGET /MOBUDGET 314-833-5111
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 22,213 families in Senate District 13.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 22,340 families in Senate District 14.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

A Missouri EITC would benefit 6,340 families in Senate District 15.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 15,274 families in Senate District 16.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 13,004 families in Senate District 17.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017

- < 15%
- 15 - 19%
- 20 - 25%
- 25% or more
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 14,619 families in Senate District 18.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 12,773 families in Senate District 19.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

A Missouri EITC would benefit 14,093 families in Senate District 20.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 13,358 families in Senate District 21.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017

- < 15%
- 15 - 19%
- 20 - 25%
- 25% or more

WWW.MOBUDGET.ORG @MISSOURIBUDGET /MOBUDGET 314-833-5111
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

A Missouri EITC would benefit 11,684 families in Senate District 22.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 9,077 families in Senate District 23.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 10,862 families in Senate District 24.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 17,786 families in Senate District 25.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 9,703 families in Senate District 26.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 14,972 families in Senate District 27.

---

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>&lt; 15%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15 - 19%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20 - 25%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25% or more</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

---

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.

WWW.MOBUDGET.ORG @MISSOURIBUDGET /MOBUDGET 314-833-5111
A state Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

A Missouri EITC would benefit 16,946 families in Senate District 28.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.
✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.
✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.
✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 18,136 families in Senate District 29.

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 16,408 families in Senate District 30.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 12,903 families in Senate District 31.

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 17,823 families in Senate District 32.

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017

- < 15%
- 15 - 19%
- 20 - 25%
- 25% or more

A Missouri EITC Would:

✓ Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

✓ Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

✓ Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

✓ Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 16,735 families in Senate District 33.

Federal EITC Helps Missourians Across the State Make Ends Meet

% of Households Receiving Federal EITC Payments, By County, Tax Year 2017

- < 15%
- 15 - 19%
- 20 - 25%
- 25% or more

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.
Bolster the Middle Class with an Earned Income Tax Credit

A state Earned Income Tax Credit would provide a much-needed boost for hardworking families. This bottom-up tax cut builds the middle class, spurs local economic growth, and provides long-term benefits to families and communities.

- The federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has long provided hardworking families the ability to achieve a better future and a pathway to the middle class. The structure of the EITC encourages people to stay working and to work more hours.

- Though most families receive the EITC only temporarily, it has profound long-term benefits for families and communities.

- Building on the demonstrated success of the federal credit, 29 states and the District of Columbia have created state EITCs that offer a credit towards state and local taxes for low- and moderate-income workers struggling to get by.

- A Missouri EITC would benefit 13,175 families in Senate District 34.

A Missouri EITC Would:

- Provide a bottom-up tax cut for working families.

- Help as many as 494,000 Missouri families from across the state pay for basic necessities like child care and car repairs, which are essential to success in work and life.

- Boost local economies by putting more money in the pockets of people most likely to spend it at local community businesses.

- Improve the lives of Missouri’s children and our future workforce. Children whose families receive the federal EITC have higher test scores, are more likely to go to college, and enjoy greater earnings as adults, establishing a more productive and skilled workforce for Missouri’s future.

A Missouri Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is one of the best ways our state can help working families – and the state of Missouri – achieve a more prosperous future.